

What We Are Reading – 1.27.12

Happy 2012! In this edition, we look at how increased trust and engagement between investors and companies can help create long term value, and we get a great snapshot of the discussions about capitalism coming out of Davos. Enjoy!

Ira Millstein and Holly Gregory of Weil, Gotshal and Manges LLP, suggest ways for boards and shareholders to rebuild trust in 2012.

A memo from Martin Lipton and David Karp of Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz praises Blackrock for their decision to take a more direct interest in the governance of companies in which they invest.

Aron Cramer, CEO of BSR, offers suggestions about what should have been discussed at the opening session of Davos about the future of capitalism.

Best Regards,

Judy Samuelson

Quick Links...

<http://www.aspenbsp.org/>

Aspen Center for Business Education

For cases and teaching materials on social impact management, visit <http://www.caseplace.org>

Contact Information

Please send feedback or suggestions to Miguel Padro at miguel.padro@aspeninst.org