THANK YOU 68
Bienvenidos to the 2022 Aspen Latino Business and Entrepreneurship Summit!

On behalf of the Aspen Institute Latinos and Society Program (AILAS), welcome to the nation’s capital to uplift policies, practices, and programs that are best supporting Latino business owners and entrepreneurs.

Latino business ownership and entrepreneurship continue to grow and represent a vital segment of the American economy, including a total economic output of $2.7 trillion in 2019 and the fastest-growing segment of the small business sector. Moreover, Latinos are setting the stage to reimagine the U.S. economy with their hiring and buying power, labor force participation, and other critical economic indicators. Nevertheless, it remains an urgent priority for U.S. innovators, policymakers, investors, and civic leaders to collectively address the myriad of systemic inequities that have unjustly capped the potential of Latinos, especially in the business community.

Our distinguished speakers will tackle market inequities, capital investments, and capacity-building gaps, digital divides, and other pressing issues that keep our business community small and under-resourced. They will share examples and best practices on how their local communities are using the post-pandemic recovery plans to move their economies forward in an equitable way. We will highlight the six cities in our Aspen City Action Lab—Chicago, El Paso, Miami, Phoenix, San Antonio, and San Bernardino—where we have developed partnerships to support the local business ecosystem and ensure Latino entrepreneurs have an opportunity to thrive. Our community-led partnerships are increasing collaboration and attracting new investments in the Latino business community. We will also have the perspectives of important stakeholders from the government and the private sectors to ensure we don’t just celebrate our impact but also work towards scaling it.

We are reimagining a healthy business ecosystem that maximizes potential through inclusion and holistic support, building the systems and tools that will foster greater opportunity for American Latinos, enabling a more prosperous and inclusive America for all.

Enjoy this time together. Engage, learn, and strengthen your network!

Adelante!

Latino-owned small businesses are the fastest-growing segment of entrepreneurs in the United States. Yet their potential has been limited by a lack of access to business knowledge, capital, and network. Business support resources can be fragmented or may lack the capacity to meet the needs of those small businesses and entrepreneurs.

To expand entrepreneurial opportunity to this dynamic yet underserved demographic, the Aspen Institute Latinos and Society (AILAS) Program joined Drexel University’s Nowak Metro Finance Lab to create the Aspen City Action Lab. The program launched in 2021 with the participation of Chicago; El Paso; Miami; Phoenix; San Antonio; and San Bernardino. Today, this innovative pilot initiative catalyzes long-term, inclusive economic growth through data-driven and community-informed approaches.

Locally focused with national impact

Because the needs of various communities differ, Aspen City Action Lab forms steering committees of cross-sector leaders in each city to address local priorities in boosting long-term growth for the Latino business sector. With the Aspen City Action Lab support, each city’s steering committee focuses on strategies and investments to increase entrepreneurial support, access to capital, community regeneration initiatives, supplier diversity efforts, and workforce development pathways.

Among other advantages, Aspen City Action Lab enables participants to:

- Learn practical economic recovery and business growth strategies and receive customized, city-specific data and metrics reflecting the current state of each city’s small business economy and Latino-owned enterprises.

- Collaborate with leaders from other participating cities, learning from each other and building nationwide networks and a community of practice.

- Connect with federal policymakers and national funders to leverage public funding and private philanthropy to accelerate Latino small business recovery and growth strategies.

- Act on at least one policy, program, and/or practice that will strengthen local Latino entrepreneurial ecosystems.

Representing America’s youngest cohort, Latino workers play an increasingly crucial role in keeping the dynamism of the US labor market, confirmed by estimations that they will account for 78% of net new workers between 2020 and 2030. However, 57% of Latinos aged 16 to 64 had low or no digital skills, compared to a US average of 31%. Latino adults also represent the demographic most at risk of job displacement due to automation and digitalization in the workplace. With at least two-thirds of jobs requiring some level of digital skills by 2030, it is critical to ensure that Latinos have the right tools to thrive in a changing economy.

As a result, the Aspen Latinos & Society Program launched the Latino Digital Success Initiative, with the goal of identifying, developing, and uplifting promising ecosystem approaches that better prepare Latino workers, entrepreneurs and business owners to compete in a 21st century digital economy. The initiative relies in applied research to consolidate digital inclusion ecosystems that support Latino communities to fully access digital opportunities.

In 2022, AILAS launched the Latino Digital Success Task Force, a diverse group of leaders from the corporate, nonprofit, and public sectors to address what success in a digital economy looks like for Latinos around the country. The Task Force constitutes a brain trust that aims to inspire action by companies, workforce organizations, and elected officials to better support the Latino community in the transition to an increasingly digital workplace and business environment. The Task Force is also addressing the need to shift the narrative around Latinos and technology and raise awareness of the opportunities and resources available to Latino talent.

Through this initiative, AILAS also develops original research to address data gaps on Latino communities at the national and local level. Some of our publications include:

- Latino Inclusion in the Digital Economy takes a closer look at the challenges Latino workers and business owners face in participating in the digital economy and shares examples of how the recommended solutions have been implemented.

- Expanding the Latinx Talent Pipeline, written in partnership with Kapor Center, quantifies the lack of Latino representation in all levels of the Tech industry.
• A roadmap to Empowerment, developed in collaboration with Aspen Digital, identifies concrete actions that can foster Latino career advancement in Tech.

• Pathways to digital skills development for Latino workers, published in partnership with UpSkill America, identifies some promising approaches to digital upskilling with an equity lens, specifically addressing the needs of Latino learners around the country.

Our future research will be focused on understanding the specific challenges and resources that could strengthen local digital capacities with equitable access for Latino communities. We will develop a baseline and create a roadmap to inform data-driven strategies that enhance access to broadband connectivity, digital devices, and digital skills training for incumbent workers, job seekers, and entrepreneurs.

REIMAGINING ACCESS TO CAPITAL FOR LATINOS
Latinos are the nation’s fastest-growing entrepreneurial segment; but despite their growth, Latino entrepreneurs disproportionately face more barriers to accessing debt and equity capital across the continuum than their white counterparts. In this session, panelists will explore how to break down the implicit bias that Latino-owned businesses (LOBs) are inherently more risky borrowers. They will also address how financial institutions can innovate capital products to increase financing for Latino entrepreneurs and small businesses.

Speakers:
Carlos Antequera, CEO, Novel Capital
Martin Guerrero, Global Policy Partnerships and Community Impact Team, Block, Inc.
Ruben Barrales, Senior Vice President, External Engagement, Wells Fargo & Company
Janie Barrera, Founder, LiftFund

Moderator:
Mary Helen Aldeis, Program Director, Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, El Paso

NETWORKING BREAK
Exploring a Place-Based Small Business Investment Model to Build Wealth & Equity

This interactive break-out session will explore the personal wealth creation potential of small business ownership and its ability to address the racial wealth gap. Speakers will explore the levers of the Hispanic business ecosystem that contribute to building wealth and equity—including, the intersectional roles of traditional bank loans & credit, CDFIs, grants, private investment, policy, local government, and community non-profits. They will also discuss strategies for taking a local place-based approach to investing in Hispanic small businesses—with the ultimate goal of helping to close the racial wealth gap, particularly in Capital One’s hometown of Richmond, VA.

Speakers:
Andy Navarrete, Executive Vice President, External Affairs, Capital One Financial Corporation
Shena Ashley, Vice President, Community Impact & Investment, Capital One
Michel Zajur, Founder, Virginia Hispanic Chamber
Carrie Cook, Vice President and Community Affairs Officer, Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond

Transformative Capacity Building: Why it Matters

Entrepreneur serving organizations are critical for the sustained growth of minority-owned businesses. However, these community pillars are often understaffed, operating in silos, and have limited funding. In this session, speakers will explore the kind of challenges that entrepreneur-serving organizations face in an environment with limited resources, and surface strategies to alleviate those challenges.

Speakers:
Mark Madrid, Associate Administrator, Office of Entrepreneurial Development, U.S Small Business Administration
Darrin Redus, Senior Vice President, Cincinnati USA Regional Chamber and CEO, Minority Business Accelerator
Karen Suarez, Director, Uplift San Bernardino Making Hope Happen
Brian Van Hook, Executive Director, Miami Small Business Development Center at Florida International University

Moderator:
Augusto Sanabria, President & CEO, Prospera
Latino Communities and the Digital Economy

The pandemic has accelerated automation and the adoption of smart technologies, making it urgent for Latino workers and entrepreneurs to develop new digital skills. According to a McKinsey report, Latinos workers are most at risk of displacement due to their overrepresentation in low-wage and low-skill sectors. However, there is no one-size-fits-all approach to effectively manage the skills-gap conundrum contributing to the mismatch of talent and jobs. In this session, panelists will discuss specific challenges and opportunities different Latino communities face and share effective initiatives to accelerate upskilling and embed digital equity in public and corporate policies.

Speakers:
Christina Kolbjørnsen, Senior Vice President, Head of Corporate and External Affairs at NBCUniversal Telemundo
Mayra Maldonado, Executive Director, Hunt Institute for Global Competitiveness, University of Texas at El Paso
Roberto Curci, Vice Provost and Dean, Brennan School of Business, Dominican University
Annemarie Schaefer, Vice President of Research, Society for Human Resource Management Research Institute

Launching Latino-Owned Businesses at Scale Through Employee Ownership

Employee stock ownership plans (ESOPs) and worker cooperatives are becoming viable options for business owners planning their succession strategies while creating opportunities for workers to build generational wealth. As market failures exclude Latino workers from wealth-building opportunities, innovations in employee ownership can fast-track Latino and minority communities to become business owners. This panel will highlight successful worker-owned models, the strategies to finance them, and what is needed to accelerate their implementation.

Speakers:
Rob Brown, Director, Business Ownership Solutions
Amber Cordoba, Director of Business Education and Consulting Services, Prestamos Loans CDFI
Roger King, Business Owner

Moderator:
Tomás Durán, President, California Market, Chicanos Por La Causa
In September of 2022, El Paso became a winner of the Build Back Better Regional Challenge receiving $40 million dollars to execute a plan to strengthen the region’s manufacturing industry around the aerospace and defense industry. In this conversation, members of the coalition responsible for this proposal will explain how this plan will strengthen America’s aerospace and defense manufacturing capabilities by integrating smaller manufacturers in West Texas who are mostly Latino-owned into the aerospace and defense (A&D) supply chain. They will also discuss what this means for the region’s majority Latino community and for American manufacturing as a whole.

Introduction by:
Gaddi Vasquez, Advisory Board Chair, Aspen Institute Latinos and Society Program

Speakers:
Congresswoman Veronica Escobar (TX-16)
Alejandra Castillo, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Development, U.S. Economic Development Agency

INCLUSIVE PROCUREMENT: LESSONS FROM THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AND PRIVATE SECTOR

To unlock the procurement economy, we need a paradigm shift in public and private contracting, away from short-term buying needs—but rather towards leveraging contracting as a tool to promote regional market dynamism, sectoral innovation, and business—and wealth-building. Speakers will discuss innovative models to foster a more deliberate, market-making, and coordinated brokering process to connect minority-owned businesses to procurement opportunities that will drive their growth and enhance the U.S. economy.

Introduction by:
Francisco J. Sanchez, Partner, Holland & Knight, LLP

Speakers:
Fernando Hernandez, Senior Director, Supplier Diversity, The Coca-Cola Company
Lisa Martinez, Founder/CEO, LM Genuine Solutions and Lead Facilitator, South Florida Anchor Alliance, Health Foundation of South Florida

TACKLING MARKET INEQUITIES: STRATEGIES FOR MITIGATING LATINO DISPLACEMENT

Gentrification is increasingly displacing longtime residents and small business owners, and altering the cultural, economic, political, and demographic make-up of cities, and entire regions. Unless concerted and coordinated action is taken, at scale, the nation runs the risk of exacerbating racial disparities on wealth, which are already pronounced. A panel of national and local community leaders will discuss displacement-mitigation strategies and highlight how coordinated collaborations can develop new ecosystem relationships, increase asset building opportunities, and reward innovation.

Shena Ashley, PhD is the head of programs within the Community Impact and Investment team at Capital One and President of the Insights Center and the Capital One Foundation. She is focusing on accelerating an innovative and equity-enhancing national philanthropic strategy.

Prior to Capital One, Dr. Ashley launched the Office of Race and Equity Research at the Urban Institute as a center of excellence toward empowering race and equity consciousness throughout the field of policy research. This began the launch of the Racial Equity Analytics Lab (REAL), an effort that brought data science and structural racism colleagues together to create data tools.

Dr. Ashley had the great fortune to lead the Center on Nonprofits and Philanthropy from 2016-2022. She led teams of researchers and strategists to build a research-in-action portfolio focused on community investing, equitable grantmaking, democratizing charitable giving, and nonprofit and philanthropic policy. Her passion for democratizing data led her to transform the National Center on Charitable Statistics to an open-data repository, which now makes nonprofit data freely accessible to the public.

Dr. Ashley holds a Ph.D. in Public Policy from Georgia Tech and Georgia State University, a MPP from the University of Michigan and a Bachelor’s degree from Tennessee State University.
Ruben Barrales is Senior Vice President for External Engagement at Wells Fargo. He works to advance Wells Fargo’s diversity and inclusion efforts for employees, customers, and the communities we serve.

Ruben previously served as president & CEO of the San Diego Regional Chamber of Commerce, and of Joint Venture: Silicon Valley Network. He also led an effort focused on increasing the number of Latinos elected to state and local government.

Prior, Ruben served in the White House as Deputy Assistant to the President and Director of White House Intergovernmental Affairs.

The son of Mexican immigrants, Ruben was the first Latino elected to the San Mateo County (California) Board of Supervisors. He was recognized as one of the “100 Most Influential Hispanics” in the United States by Hispanic Business Magazine, and he received the “Ohtli Award” from the Government of Mexico for his commitment to improving the well-being of Hispanics in the United States.
Janie Barrera is the Founder of LiftFund. LiftFund has become one of the largest micro and small business lenders in the United States. The nonprofit organization provides loans and management training to enterprises of all kinds—from startups to long established businesses. Since its inception, it has disbursed more than 24,000 loans totaling more than $425 million—with an impressive 96% repayment rate.

As Founder & Executive Vice-President, Jaine is responsible for interacting with the communities we serve and advocates for hard-working small business owners and entrepreneurs who do not have access to loans from commercial sources. Janie has worked hard to level the financial playing field for entrepreneurs, who historically have faced considerable obstacles when seeking the financing they need to start and grow their businesses.

Janie is a change agent in the field of microfinance and helping small businesses reach their full potential. President Barack Obama appointed Janie to the President’s Advisory Council on Financial Capability and named her to the Federal Reserve of Dallas’ San Antonio Branch board of directors. In 2015, she was named to the San Antonio Business Hall of Fame. In 2022 Janie won the Impact Award for Innovation on Main Street at the Association for Enterprise Opportunity (AEO) and the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce Impact Award: Legacy and Merit Award - Recognition for outstanding leadership and contributions to the local business community.
Amanda Bergson-Shilcock is a Senior Fellow at National Skills Coalition. She leads the organization’s work on adult education and workforce policies to expand opportunities for US-born and immigrant adults. Amanda has worked with state and federal policymakers and skills advocates to develop policy solutions that address the challenges facing adult learners and job seekers, including immigrant workers.

As a workforce development expert, Amanda has authored numerous publications and policy recommendations—on immigrant integration, workforce development, and adult education—which have helped educate policymakers, journalists, and the public and inform public policy at the state and federal levels. Her policy expertise, insights, and commentary have been cited and published in TIME, Fortune, BBC News, Inside Higher Ed, POLITICO, Business Insider, The Wall Street Journal, H.R. Dive, and more.

Prior to joining the National Skills Coalition, Amanda served as Vice President of Policy and Evaluation at the nonprofit Welcoming Center for New Pennsylvanians. She led the Center’s policy and communications work on adult education, workforce, and economic development issues in that role.

Amanda holds a bachelor’s degree from the University of Pennsylvania, where she studied American Civilization with an emphasis on minority populations.
Rob Brown is the director of Business Ownership Solutions at the Cooperative Development Institute (CDI). CDI is the USDA-designated Cooperative Business Development Center for the Northeast. Rob is a nationally recognized expert in the field of employee ownership transitions, assisting business owners and their workers explore, assess, structure, and execute transitions to worker-owned cooperatives, and leads programs at the local, regional, and national level to educate and advise business owners on exit planning process and options. He participates in several national networks promoting the strategy of employee ownership transitions and best practices in the field, including as a founding member of the Workers to Owners Collaborative. Rob lives with his family in Northport, Maine.

Mileyka Burgos-Flores is a Dominican-American activist and founding Executive Director & CEO of The Allapattah Collaborative, CDC- a placed based, non-profit organization that uses Main Street Approach to preserve and expand cultural authenticity and wealth building in marginalized immigrant enclaves. The organization aims to revitalize the Little Santo Domingo commercial corridors in the midst of mitigating climate gentrification pressures as it focuses on its mission of implementing place making techniques to foster identity, supporting wealth building strategies for marginalized communities of color and advocating for policies/procedures that support equitable, comprehensive and sustainable community development.

Mileyka holds a bachelor degree from the University of Miami and a master degree from Florida International University. She is an avid advocate for social justice in marginalized communities by working with neighborhood stakeholders in grassroots community engagement campaigns and inter-agency collaborations. She has been a champion in asset-framing the Latinx immigrant contributions and experience, as well as advocating for the preservation of culture in marginalized cultural enclaves under the principles of access, equity, representation, inclusion and upward mobility. Mileyka is a 2022 Center for Community Investment Fulcrum Fellow, focused on establishing shared equity community ownership models to prevent displacement and enhance wealth building in Allapattah.
Alejandra Y. Castillo was sworn in as U.S. Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Development on August 13, 2021. She has served in leadership positions for three presidents - Biden, Obama and Clinton. Her professional career spans two decades, focusing on creating equitable and inclusive opportunities for all Americans.

Prior to EDA, Castillo was the Chief Executive Officer of YWCA USA, where she championed the 163-year-old organization delivering critical social, educational, and economic development services throughout its 204 associations.

In 2014, Castillo was appointed by President Obama to serve as the national director of the Commerce Department’s Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA), becoming the first Hispanic woman to lead the agency. During her tenure, she led MBDA’s efforts to boost the growth and global competitiveness of minority business enterprises (MBEs).

Castillo first joined the Department of Commerce in 2008 as a Special Advisor to the Under Secretary for the U.S. Department of Commerce’s International Trade Administration (ITA). Additionally, Castillo served as a Senior Policy Analyst in the White House during the Clinton Administration.

She holds a bachelor’s degree in Economics and Political Science from the State University of New York at Stony Brook, a master’s degree in public affairs from the LBJ School at the University of Texas at Austin, and earned a Juris Doctor degree from American University’s Washington College of Law.
In 2012, Joaquin was elected to serve in the U.S. House of Representatives as representative of Texas’ 20th Congressional District, which covers a large portion of San Antonio and Bexar County. Joaquin's identical twin brother, Julián Castro, was elected in 2013 to his third term as Mayor of San Antonio. On July 28, 2014, Julian Castro was sworn in as Secretary of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Joaquin's respect for public service developed at a young age and was deeply influenced by his parents’ involvement in political movements and civic causes. His father, a retired teacher, and his mother, a renowned community activist, instilled in him a deep appreciation for the democratic process and the importance of serving one's community.

Despite a difficult political environment during his time as state legislator, Joaquin transcended partisan gridlock to help restore millions of dollars in funding to critical health care and education programs. As Vice Chairman of the Higher Education Committee and Democratic Floor Leader in the Texas House, he was also at the forefront in proposing forward-thinking legislative reforms in the areas of mental health, teen pregnancy, and juvenile justice.
Ramiro A. Cavazos is President and CEO of the United States Hispanic Chamber of Commerce (USHCC), America’s largest business advocacy organization for Hispanics. He is a trusted economic development expert and champion for bipartisan solutions that generate wealth to advance economic opportunity for the Latinos.

His global perspective was honed by his experience working in the private sector for the Levi Strauss Company as Manager of Global Public Affairs & Contributions. His passion for small business is also fueled by his experience running his own public affairs business for 3 years, serving clients such as AT&T, Valero Energy, and H-E-B.

Today, Ramiro proudly serves as the Chairman of the Board for the Hispanic Association on Corporate Responsibility (HACR), which advocates for Fortune 500 companies to invest in more equity and fair representation for Hispanics on corporate boards and publicly traded companies. Ramiro has shared his views on Latino entrepreneurship, small business growth, trade, and commerce on Fortune, Forbes, Time, Newsweek, CNN, the Associated Press, The Economist, The Washington Post and more. Ramiro earned his master’s degree in Public Administration from St. Mary’s University, and completed his bachelor’s degree in Government from The University of Texas at Austin.
Julie Chavez Rodriguez serves as Senior Advisor and Assistant to the President as well as Director of the White House Office of Intergovernmental Affairs. Prior to joining the Biden-Harris Administration, she served as a Deputy Campaign Manager on the Biden-Harris Campaign. Before that, she was National Political Director and traveling Chief of Staff for then-Senator Kamala Harris’ presidential campaign. Prior to launching Senator Harris’ campaign, she served as California State Director in her senate office. During the Obama-Biden administration, Julie served as Special Assistant to the President and Senior Deputy Director of Public Engagement in the Office of Public Engagement. Before joining the White House, Julie served as the Director of Youth Employment at the Department of the Interior and as Deputy Press Secretary to former Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar. Congresswoman Veronica Escobar, a third-generation El Pasoan, proudly represents Texas’ 16th Congressional District.

She took office on January 3, 2019 as a member of the U.S. House of Representatives after making history as the first woman elected to this seat.

In Congress, she has established herself as the voice of the border and as a national leader on gun safety, health care, and immigration, including fighting the Trump administration’s inhumane and cruel policies that harm border communities. She has led legislation to address our nation’s immigration challenges in a responsible and humane manner by ensuring accountability, transparency, and oversight.

Before her election, she served on the governing body for El Paso County, first as a County Commissioner and then as County Judge. She also worked to make El Paso County a leader in expanding access to healthcare by working with the University Medical Center of El Paso to build primary care clinics and the El Paso Children’s Hospital.

Congresswoman Escobar is a graduate of the University of Texas at El Paso and New York University. She and her husband, Michael, live in Central El Paso with their beloved cats. They have two grown children: Cristian Diego and Eloisa Isabel.

Jane Gonzalez is the owner of the family operated business, MEDwheels. MEDwheels started in 2005 as medicare providers for seniors with durable medical equipment needs. Jane likes to say that Medwheels is not in the business of selling commodities but creating hope and safety with medical supplies that essentially transform patients. “MEDwheels is not alone, we represent the heart and soul of small businesses across America in our communities.”

Part of Jane’s purpose is devoting years of her time and effort by volunteering in boards that advance small, minority, woman-owned businesses and increase procurement contracting. She has been appointed by Judge Nelson Wolff to the Bexar County Board, Mayor Julian Castro to the Fort Sam Houston Community Advisory Committee, Councilwoman Phyllis Viagran to Small Business Advisory Commission, co-author of the City of San Antonio SBEDA Ordinance, and much more. The passion combing both operating a business and sharing the challenges and opportunities during the volunteering phase can improve diversity, equity, and inclusion. Jane also wrote an OP ED at the San Antonio Express News Commentary: Nurture Second-stage Companies, Boost San Antonio’s Economy. Jane is cautiously excited about inclusion in diversity with equity to transform our economically challenged neighborhoods by creating innovative solutions unaccustomed to procurement processes.

Michel immigrated to the United States from Mexico City with his family as a young child in the early 1960’s. He was taught the value of hard work by working in his family’s restaurant, La Siesta Mexican Restaurant. After a long while, it became more than a restaurant, it became a local hotspot for the Hispanic community. Not only for delicious food, but also as a place to gather and obtain information on everything going on in the community. This passion and commitment to the community led to the establishment of multiple educational programs, as well as, the birth of the Virginia Hispanic Chamber & Foundation.

Michel Zajur attended college at Virginia Commonwealth University, where he furthered his passion for helping the Hispanic community. As a result of his work with outreach programs and his involvement within the community, Michel founded a statewide organization, the Virginia Hispanic Chamber of Commerce (VHCC), in May of 2000. The VAHCC serves as the bridge linking the Hispanic business community within the Commonwealth of Virginia. In 2003, the Virginia Hispanic Foundation was established as an effort to further provide education, information, and resources to the Hispanic community.
La diversidad, la equidad y la inclusión son nuestras bases para la innovación e impulsan nuestro negocio.
