

Krishen Mehta, Co-chairman, Board of Advisors, Global Financial Integrity

Krishen Mehta was a partner with PricewaterhouseCoopers from 1989 to 2008 based in the Tokyo office. He served in PwC's offices in New York, London, and Denver, before assuming leadership for the office in Tokyo in the area of tax and global mobility. He had regional responsibility in Asia, and worked closely with the offices in China, South Korea, Singapore, India, and Malaysia.

Mr. Mehta has written for the International Herald Tribune and the Japan Times on subjects dealing with global poverty, education, and social justice. While at PricewaterhouseCoopers he was often a featured speaker at client conferences. Mr. Mehta led a team of over 200 professional staff in five offices in Asia and helped establish the firm's tax service centers in India, Beijing, and Singapore.

While in Japan, Mr. Mehta served on the Board of Governors of the American Chamber of Commerce in Japan, and also on the Board of Nishimachi International School in Tokyo. He is an engineer by training, has a Masters in Business Administration, and is a US CPA.

At present Mr. Mehta is on the Board of Advisors of Global Financial Integrity, an NGO based in Washington DC and engaged on policy initiatives to stem capital outflows from developing countries. He is also a Director of Asia Initiatives which provides support for Microcredit Banks and Educational entrepreneurs in South Asia. He serves on the Asia Advisory Council of Human Rights Watch in New York. And since July 2008, Mr. Mehta has been an Advisor to Aspen Institute Business and Society Program.
